

Lincoln Eldridge, Incitec Pivot Limited – Dyno Nobel – Short Bio

Lincoln is currently the HSE Manager at the Dyno Nobel Ammonium Nitrate manufacturing facility in Queensland, Australia. Prior to this role, Lincoln spent 11 years working with his friend and mentor Corrie Pitzer as part of Safemap International. Lincoln is a specialist in the area of organizational and industrial safety with formal qualifications in Psychology. He has worked internationally over the past two decades in Australasia, Africa, Europe, and North America.

In honor of Faye Buerger's passion, commitment and caring for people in our industry Lincoln will share the story of how a mining manager had a series of life altering experiences that caused him to reevaluate his own perceptions on the meaning of safety, risk, leadership and human performance in high-risk environments.

As a direct result of these experiences, this mining manager became a truly inspirational leader of thousands of personnel, developing a deep sense of care and passion for those he and his team would ultimately lead day to day.

This is a story that reflects Fay's values of care, commitment and passion for the people who work in our industry. It is our hope that you will also see those values that Faye so willingly shared with us as you listen to this presentation.
